

Case study: Working with EEV Disclosures

Equiniti Hazell Carr has been assisting a well-known UK insurer with the consolidation of EEV disclosures across all product lines for the purposes of external financial reporting, as well as monthly and quarterly profitability and new business strain projections.

The projections work includes the development of spreadsheets and procedures to be used by our client as part of their business-as-usual processes. The project has also necessitated a summary of profitability measures from models, as well as valuation testing and model point analysis.

It has required a range of actuarial expertise, from actuarial students through to specialist modellers and qualified actuaries. At project peak we were supplying 10 individuals including a mixture of permanent staff and contractors.
